

10 Ideas For Portable Storage During Your Move

1. Pack on your own time. Have you ever spent a weekend rushing around like mad, trying to get everything packed in time for the movers? Not a lot of fun. With portable storage, you get to pack on your own time. Want to take two months and pack at your own pace? Portable storage makes it easy to do just that.
2. Back-safe loading. If you don't pay somebody else to do it, getting heavy boxes and furniture into a moving truck isn't fun-- and can even be dangerous. Keep your back safe! Portable storage units sit flat on the ground, making loading and unloading easy and safe.
3. Keep an eye on your possessions. When you hire movers, there's always a bit of nagging doubt that something might go missing. After all, you don't know these people, do you? When you use a portable storage unit, you don't have to trust your things to a stranger. Your portable storage unit is locked and safe-- accessible only by you.
4. Save money. Hiring movers costs a fortune... and even renting a moving truck is expensive. Because portable storage is a hands-off moving method, it's also cheaper than the alternatives.
5. Get your things out from under-foot. Getting packed and moved is stressful. And having everything you own around the house and under-foot sure doesn't help. With portable storage, it's easy to pack intelligently. You can pack up in a logical order, getting unnecessary items out of your home first.
6. Stay out of the driver's seat. Maneuvering a large moving truck to your new home is a difficult (and stressful) job, unless you have plenty of experience. With portable storage, all the driving is done for you.
7. Unpack at your own pace. With traditional moving methods, everything goes in the house at once-- and is generally in the way. With portable storage, you unpack at your own pace, leaving some items in the portable storage unit until you're ready for them.
8. Easy temporary storage. Sometimes moving isn't as simple as going from one place to another. If you plan to stay in a temporary location while waiting for your new home, storing your possessions temporarily in a portable storage warehouse is simple.
9. Focus on the family. Moving to a new home is especially stressful for children. But if you use a portable storage unit, you don't have to worry about only your possessions. Just call the portable storage company, and your things are transported for you. Then you can focus on getting your family moved comfortably.
10. Reduce stress. Moving is one of the most stressful things you can do. Living (even short term) between homes isn't easy! Portable storage cuts down on moving stress, as not having to keep track of your packed items, a truck, and movers makes the whole day go more smoothly.
