

What are baby pillows

Baby pillows are increasing in popularity. New Moms are wary of the problems that a new born may face without something to support its tender body. Nowadays, hundreds of companies are competing for the lucrative market of baby care products.

Baby pillow has gain such an instantaneous recognition among Moms that it has become the most admired product for the fourth consecutive year, according to the American Baby magazine. The evolution of the modern baby pillow can be traced seventeen years back when the current owner of Boppy started designing the C shape pillows, similar to head rests. Her company has grown to be a multi million enterprise since then and Boppy has become a name synonymous with Baby pillows.

Baby pillows come in a variety of sizes and facilitate Moms with a number of baby issues. Mainly, the pillows act as a support to the baby and to the Mom. These pillows are primarily used to protect the slender back portion of the childs head that is vulnerable to becoming flat due to elongated contact with a hard surface. Another important use of these pillows is to protect the child from SIDS (sudden infant death syndrome). Young children are exposed to SIDS when they lay by their sides, which often results in them turning head down on the surface. A child can easily be suffocated if they lie face down. These pillows are made to prevent child from turning sides.

Some pillows are made for cribs and are specifically used for a baby that is under one year old. The foam underneath the pillow will mold itself according to the shape of babys head which helps the baby relax. Another type of pillow allows the Mom to support her and their babies during nursing. There are also baby pillows that can be fitted in a child car seat.
