

Bring Life To Your Ecards With Blue Mountain Cards

Ecards need no introduction. The rage for electronic greeting cards began sometime in the early 90s and has only scaled greater heights ever since. The ecard era has arrived big time! Gone are the days when people would stand in a queue miles long to purchase a card for. It seems way long ago that scores would flock to the card store to buy a greeting for those important moments. But when the electronic greeting cards became a craze, people assumed that this could hardly be a wise business idea. The concept of sending online greetings seemed like an reckless business move. Inviting people to move beyond the time honored custom of giving and receiving paper cards was easier said than done. People needed to appreciate the wisdom in adopting technology to perform something that was earlier manual.
